

Caterina Ligato was just a child

when she realised the people she was playing with weren't visible to others. At first, her mother called it a vivid imagination. But it wasn't imagination that kept the young girl occupied for hours on her own, it was the spirits she interacted with.

As she got older Caterina struggled with her gift, until at a young boy's funeral she was able to give comfort and hope to his despairing mother with knowledge the boy's spirit had shared with her. It was a turning point.

From that moment, she realised her psychic ability offered a way to help those grieving, despairing . . . or haunted.

With the assistance of her spirit guides, Caterina has developed into a powerful and extraordinary psychic healer. Her stories of exorcism, healing sessions and spiritual communication have spread and she now receives requests for help from all around the world.

Caterina is truly a ghost whisperer and in this book she shares her fascinating personal experiences dealing with the spirit world and gives an insight into the battles between good and evil she sees occurring in the most ordinary homes all around Australia. Her encounters with lost souls, spirit possession and the occult are intense and often chilling but her message of faith and the power of good to overcome restores hope to us all.
